ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the process of undertaking this study, I have been indebted to many people. Without their help and support, it could certainly not have been completed. I would like to express my sincere appreciation to those persons who provide assistance and made this study possible.

Firstly, I wish to express my great appreciation to Dr. Jirawan Kitchaichaicharoen, my major academic advisor, Department of Agricultural Economics, Chiang Mai University, for her continuous guidance, support and encouragement throughout my period of study at Chiang Mai University.

My special gratitude is due to Dr. Yaovarate Chaovanapoonphol, the member of thesis examination committee who has provided me with invaluable comments and suggestion that helped significantly to improve my study at Chiang Mai University.

My heartfelt thanks go to Lecturer Phrek Gypmantasiri, the member of my examination committee for spending precious time in examining my thesis and giving me invaluable comments and suggestion. I am pleased to acknowledge a special debt to my respect and thanks are also given to Assoc. Prof. Dr. Benchaphun Ekasingh, Agricultural Economics, and Chiang Mai University.

I wish to record my grateful thanks and appreciation to Ms Chatnapa Prommanon and Ms Naruemon Thinrach, academic and administrative staff for her useful advice and cordial support during my studies and staffs of the Multiple Cropping Center under the Agricultural Systems Program in Chiang Mai University for their inspiration, and hospitality. I wish to extend my appreciation to the Thailand International Cooperation Agency for granting me a scholarship to support my study at MCC. I am grateful to the Graduate School Chiang Mai University for offering me the opportunity and strong stimulation to pursue the study.

Finally, I would like to thank my father, Mr Ba Than Tin, my beloved mother, Mrs Ah Mar Tin, for their endless encouragement and support. And the most special thanks to my husband, Mr Thein Lwin for his love, sacrifices, patience, understanding and motivation to reach up this level. Above all, I want them to know that I love them all very dearly. I would like to dedicate this dissertation to them.
