ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The writing of this thesis has been one of the most significant academic challenges the author has ever had to face. Without the support, patience and guidance of the following people, this study would not have been completed. It is to them that the author owes her deepest gratitude.

In the first place the author would like to record his gratitude to Dr. Prof. Daniel Schoch for his supervision, advice, knowledge and commitment to the highest standards inspired and motivated to the author.

The author would also like to thank Dr. Prof. Songsak Sriboonchita for his uninterrupted advice and teach, and also for help the author to build up the method and modeling for calculations on this thesis.

Thanks to all the lecturers of the Bilingual Economics program, for their teaching, and also for their continuous encouragement and massive help during these years. I would also like to gratitude all the staffs in the Faculty of Economics Chiang Mai University for their self-giving help and data finding; also gratitude for all the interviewees in my data collection.

Last, my thanks would go to my beloved family for their loving considerations and great confidence in me all through these years.
